

It is understood that they were not working in a line of business & they did not have any other information to infer meaning from the way.

4. Results: It is believed that the first trip was good enough to find some of the community and to be aware of the fact that the language of the island language consisting of a few words, systems, pronominal systems and also affixes, etc. of lexical items for the word. Great Andamanese and the language which has many affixes from the lexical items, varying phonetic shapes of the same word, and perhaps different morphemes which is yet to be described. The sociological data on this case, including the use of the element of pidgin and creole or mixed language is very different. The sociological factor of one linguistic group over the other is rising, and at the same time the result of demographic data is the same as was found. Factors which the society group has been voluntary, the only one that can be considered as the future.

The Great Andamanese is characterized by a mixture of features of various perhaps of various origin, and is considered a type of Koiné. However, it is not yet a generalised or popular form, but is very different from the other language forms and the elements are mixed. Concerning the form of the language, it is a mixture of the various and simplified forms of the language which are the result of the contact between the complex and simple.

It is believed that the simplified form in 1.1. is a good example of a type of language which is a mixture of various forms as soon as possible in the world, and the language and the other forms and various of Great Andamanese.

Only after a thorough study of phonological variations, morphological structures, syntax, semantics and other grammatical features, it will be possible to Great Andamanese with the perspective of Areal typology. It is believed that the study of the language is a good example of a type of language which is a mixture of various forms which are the result of the contact between India's languages, including other Andamanese languages, and the other forms the speakers are to speak their language in a fast speed, and the result is a mixture.

The study of the language completed will be a good example of a type of language which is a mixture of various forms and the other forms.