

LAND, FIREWOOD 68

BUREAUCRATIC PREDATORS

Report no. 7 of 2002

There are 7.3 million tribals in Maharashtra of which the majority live in the vicinity of forests. Many cultivate forest land and are described as encroachers. The decision to make encroachers between 1972 to 1978, the owners of these lands has not been implemented for lack of documentary evidence to prove encroachment and the tribal families continue to be designated as encroachers. As encroachers they continue to pay bribes in cash and grain to government functionaries for cultivating the land and for collecting firewood etc. under the threat of being arrested.

The officials say there are no records to support the date/period of encroachment; the tribals have been saying the records were not created in the past because the encroachments were not brought on record in return for bribes. Hence, though the annual bribes paid by each family to junior field officials appear small they have had a macro impact in depriving tribals of land titles. For example, in Dhule district 89 % of the 10,946 encroachers (with some names being repeated) have been held ineligible for grant of titles. Thus the same officialdom that had destroyed the evidence is now asking the tribals to produce it.

OUT OF 29 FARMERS QUESTIONED, 28 PAY REGULAR ANNUAL BRIBES TO FOREST OFFICIALS

LAND, FIREWOOD AND BUREAUCRATIC PREDATORS

INTRODUCTION

There are 7.3 million tribals in Maharashtra of which the majority live in the vicinity of forests. Many cultivate forest land and are described as encroachers. It had been decided that encroachments during the period from 1972 to 1978 would be converted to ownership and regular land titles would be granted. However the decision to make the tribals owners of these lands has not been implemented and the tribal families continue to be designated as encroachers. As encroachers they continue to pay bribes in cash and grain to government functionaries for cultivating the land and for collecting firewood etc. under the threat of being arrested.

One of the main problems is that some evidence is required to prove that the encroachment existed during the period from 1972 to 1978. And this evidence is not available in many cases.

In many cases the reason why the evidence is lacking is that in the past it was in the interest of the encroacher and the forest official not to create the evidence. The encroacher did not want an offence to be registered against him. The Forest Act arms officials with power to fine, imprison and destroy the crop. For not bringing the encroachment on record he was willing to pay a bribe to the forest official. In return, the forest official ignored the encroachment and did not register an FOR (First Offence Report). And now we are asking the same forest official to ask the encroacher to produce evidence of the encroachment. The same system that destroyed the evidence is now asking for it. The same bureaucracy; the same petty officialdom that thrives on the exploitation of the tribals and had concealed the encroachments is now seeking evidence to convert encroachment into ownership. Even if the forest officials wish to reveal the truth regarding the period of encroachment, they cannot, because they would be questioned why the encroachments were not brought on record.

Consequently many encroachments have not been converted into ownership in spite of the policy to do so.

The officials say there are no records to support the date of encroachment; the tribals have been saying the records were not created in the past because the encroachment was not brought on record in return for bribes. Hence, though the annual bribes paid by each family to junior field officials appear small they have had a macro impact in depriving tribals of land titles. For example, in Dhule district 89 % of the 10,946 encroachers (with some being repeated) have been held ineligible for grant of titles.

This institute questioned some farmers regarding the bribes being paid now, the period of their encroachment on forest lands and the reasons for lack of evidence to support their encroachments.

This is a brief report to expose and emphasise the point that reliance on documentary evidence is unrealistic and defeats the purpose of the policy to create land titles for old encroachments.

29 farmers were questioned in 9 villages of Nawapur and Nandurbar tehsils of Nandurbar district of Maharashtra, who had encroached on 121.5 acres of forest land. (This district was previously a part of Dhule district).

SUMMARY OF MAIN FINDINGS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

MAIN FINDINGS

(1) Data from Dhule district was collected regarding the conversion of encroachers into owners. It was found that as many as 89 % of the encroachers were not granted ownership titles. There is a double entry of some names. The details are given below:

Total encr	oachment	Eligible for co		Not el	igible
Families	Area (ha.)	Families	Area	Families	Area
10,946	17,213	1,247	2,110	9,699	15,103

- (2) 28 respondents, who had not received land titles stated that they had been paying bribes to forest officials for the encroachment and for collection of firewood. The bribes were paid in cash and kind. The cash bribes ranged from Rs.200 to Rs.5000.
- (3) They stated that they paid the bribes from money obtained from money lenders.
- (4) Failure to pay the bribes would have led to arrest and destruction of crops.
- (5) Though the encroachers did not have records to prove the age of the encroachment, it was confirmed that they were residing in the village at the relevant time between 1972 and 1978. This was confirmed by questioning other persons in the village. It was also confirmed on the basis of the house tax register in the village in respect of 8 encroachers selected at random.
- (6) Without titles to land the tribals are unable to access institutional credit and become victims of money lenders or agents who obtain loans illegally from banks and deduct huge commissions from the loan amount. This has happened in Chandrapur district.

RECOMMENDATIONS

- (1) When it is a widely known and accepted fact that to avoid punishment, bribes were paid not to create documentary evidence regarding the encroachment and forest officials therefore did not register the cases, it is unreal and unfair to reject the cases for grant of titles on the ground that documentary evidence was lacking to prove the encroachment.
- (2) If there is no evidence to the contrary and the local enquiry reveals that the encroacher is not a recent migrant and was residing in the village at the material time, his claim for the land title should be conceded, especially if he has no other private land of his own.
- (3) For implementing the policy of granting land titles it was found that many villages had not been covered. It was not possible to verify from the concerned officials why this had happened. It is strongly recommended that NGOs and social workers should also be involved in surveying villages and identifying old encroachers to avoid the possibility of villages/encroachers being excluded because of their political affiliation. 6 of the respondents from 2 villages in Nandurbar district stated that no survey had been done in their villages. There are various political organizations working in tribal areas and it cannot be assumed that the bureaucracy will be impartial or have the strength to be impartial.
- (4) For other recommendations pertaining to grant of land (in command areas of irrigation projects) please see the report on resettlement of tribal families.
