ABOUT THE INSTITUTE

In order to make a correct appraisal of the problems of tribals in the light of their distinctive life and culture, Government of India had sponsored a programme during IIIrd Five Year Plan to start Tribal Research and Training Institute in all such states of the country which had more than one million tribal population. Under this programmes, a proposal to start such an Institute in the Gujarat State was submitted by the Gujarat Vidyapith, Ahmedabad which is a deemed University founded by Mahatma Gandhi in the year 1920. Accordingly with its full financial committment, the State Government set-up this Institute at the Gujarat Vidyapith in June 1962.

This Institute is a premior organisation for Research and Training in welfare and culture of the Scheduled tribes. Its activity also cover similar programmes for Scheduled castes and also other Backward Communities. The Institute has in the main three sections - Research, Training and Museum.

The Institute serves the state as :

- (i) A centre for studies in tribal situation and problems, planning for tribal areas and evaluating the tribal development programmes.
- (ii) A documentation centre for relevant problems concerning the tribal region.
- (iii) A co-ordinating centre for anthropological and linguistic studies carried out amongst tribal communities.
- (iv) A briefing and training centre for Officers of ITDP, Extension Workers, Local Officers and Village Level Workers, I.C.D.S. Workers etc., as well as for workers of voluntary organisation.
- (v) A centre for collecting and displaying tribal artifacts in a museum set-up at this Institute which gives a vivid visual idea of tribal life and culture.

RESEARCH :

In research emphasis is given in the main, to field studies in tribal structure and organisation, demographic features, socio-economic conditions, social status and stratification, identification of scheduled tribes and analysis of impact of development programmes on socio-economic conditions of tribal, scheduled castes and other communities. The research findings are utilised in formulating plans of development of scheduled tribes and in enriching the content and quality of training programmes. Some of the studies on which major attention is currently devoted relate to action oriented survey and research leading to formulation of plans for the development of primitive tribes and dispersed tribals under micro projects.

TRAINING :

As regards training programme the Institute organises general orientation training courses on tribal life and culture and imparts instructions to government officers working in tribal areas. Special training courses for forest staff also come under the purview of the training programme of the Institute. The scope of the training programmes has recently been expanded by imparting training on tribal life and culture to the grass root level workers, such as Talati, Gramsevak, Sarpanch, Patel, Youth workers etc. Training the voluntary organisation workers is also an important activity of the Institute.

MUSEUM :

A very significant activity of this Institute is the organisation of a tribal museum where the collection of the various artifacts provides a vivid visual picture of the different facts of tribal life, culture and art. The Institute's museum has occupied a significant place in the state for promotion of tribal art. The museum has a photography section in which there are 4428 (35 mm) and 211 (120 mm) photographs from different tribal groups. This section has also 720 (35 mm) and 72 (120mm) coloured transparencies showing various aspects of tribal life. There is a good display of life size photographs in the museum. The museum has also a film library which has about 25 films from different tribal areas of the country.

The Institute brings out a bi-annual journal "Adivasi Gujarat" since the year 1978.

The Institute's library is a specialized library of social science literature. Professional Journals and periodicals are being subscribed by the Institute.

Note : At present Tribal Research And Training Institute, Gujarat Vidyapith, Ahmedabad is now transferred as a Gujarat Tribal Research And Training Society(GTRTS), Birsa Munda Bhavan, Gandhinagar, Gujarat State and working under Tribal Development Department Government of Gujarat and grants from State & Central Government.
