PREFACE

THE Tribal Cultural Research and Training Institute, Hyderabad, was established in April, 1963 and as a first step, the Institute undertook to collect statistical data about the various aspects of tribal life from various sources. This pamphlet is also being published in the regional language—Telugu so as to be useful to Government Departments and Social Workers.

Several officials of various Departments have co-operated in furnishing the necessary data in bringing out this publication. We acknowledge our thanks to those officials, specially, the Superintendent, Census Operations, Andhra Circle, Hyderabad. Our thanks are also to the Director of Government Printing Press for having printed this work within a short time.

PREFACE

This Third Edition of Handbook of Statistics is published in April 1963 and contains 1,000 pages. It is about the same size as the first edition, but it is also more up-to-date. The first edition was published in 1947 and contained 700 pages. It was a landmark publication in the field of statistics and has been a valuable reference work for many years.

The present edition is a revised and enlarged version of the first edition. It contains many new articles and has been brought up to date in many respects. The editor, Dr. W. G. Cochran, has done a fine job of selecting and editing the material. The book is a valuable reference work for statisticians and for those who are interested in statistics.

INTRODUCTION

ANDHRA Pradesh is a large State with a population of 3.59 crores, standing fourth in the Indian Union. It covers an area of 106,286 square miles. The total tribal population of Andhra Pradesh according to 1961 Census is 13,24,368 and constitutes 3.68 per cent and 4.43 per cent of the total population of the State and the total Scheduled Tribes population of India, respectively. The density of Tribal population in the State is 12 persons per square mile. The ratio of females per thousand males is 976 in the entire State.

According to the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes—Lists Modification Order, 1956, Ministry of Home Affairs, there are 33 Scheduled Tribes (Annexure-2) with varying traditions, cultural and economic levels inhabiting the State. They are found in the Scheduled as well as plain areas of the State. The Scheduled area of the State is 11,595 square miles.

These aboriginals live in the forests of Salur, Parvathipuram, Palakonda and Pathapatnam taluks (Srikakulam District), Paderu, Chintapalli, Narasipatnam, Srungavarapukota taluks (Visakhapatnam District), Yellavaram, Rampachodavaram taluks (East Godavari District), Polavaram taluk (West Godavari District), Achampeta taluk (Mahabubnagar District), Utnoor, Asifabad, Adilabad, Sirpur, Boath and Lakshitpeta taluks (Adilabad District), Mulug and Narasampet taluks (Warangal District), Yellandu, Burgampadu, Bhadrachalam, Nugur and Kothagudem taluks (Khammam district).

They are also found mainly in the plain areas of Thiruvur, Vijayawada and Nandigama taluks (Krishna District), Guntur, Tenali and Bapatla taluks (Guntur District), Nellore, Kovur and Gudem taluks (Nellore District), Kalahasti and Satyavedu taluks (Chittoor District), Rajampet and Rayachoti taluks (Cuddapah District), Kadiiri and Penukonda taluks (Anantapur District), Markapur and Pattikonda taluks (Kurnool District), Hyderabad West and Pargi taluks (Hyderabad District), Nizamabad and Kamareddi taluks (Nizamabad District), Manthani and Jagatial taluks (Karimnagar District) and Devarakonda taluk (Nalgonda District).

The occupation of the tribal people is mainly agriculture. 29.5 per cent of them are cultivators and 20.8 per cent are agricultural labourers. The Gonds, Kolams, Naikpods and Koyas in the districts of Adilabad, Warangal, Khammam and Karimnagar are largely settled plough cultivators. Bagatas, Savaras, Gadabas and Khonds are Podu cultivators and also settled cultivators. The Chenchus of Nallamalai forest and Amara-bad plateau are food-gatherers and hunters. The Pardhans and Thotis are musicians and bards. The Gouds and Sugalis are Pastoral people, and now they have taken up agriculture. Some of the tribals like Savaras and Jatapus in Srikakulam District have ingeniously constructed bunds to the hill streams to water their terraced fields. They grow Jawar, Maize, Cholam, Ragi, Red Gram, Black Gram, Horse Gram, Niger, French Beans and Peas. Lately they have started growing bananas in Palakonda and Srungavarapukota areas of Srikakulam and Visakhapatnam Districts respectively. The Tribals of Araku Valley grow oranges.

Almost all the tribals collect minor forest produce like tamarind, myrobalams, sheekai, hill-brooms, soap-nuts, marking-nuts, adda-leaves, honey and chirongi. The tribals in the Srikakulam, Visakhapatnam, East and West Godavari districts collect Pathalagaridi (Ralfia serpentina) which has foreign-market. The Chenchus are very good experts in bamboo cutting and honey collection. All the tribal people supplement their diet by hunting, fishing and food-gathering.

Now the tribals are also engaged in non-agricultural operations like house-hold industries, mining, construction works, trade and commerce, transport and communications and Government service.

Regarding literacy the figures reveal the fact that 4.41 per cent are literates among the tribals.

The tribals of Andhra Pradesh are very rich in languages and dialects. The Gonds and Thotis of Adilabad speak Gondi. The Kolams speak essentially Kolami. The Sugalis, otherwise known as Lambadas or Banjaras speak Lambadi. The Savaras of Srikakulam District speak Savara language. They also speak Telugu and Oriya. The Gadabas' mother-tongue is Gadaba language of Mundari group of Austro-Asiatic family of languages. The Khonds speak Kui. The Bagatas, Gouds and Kotiyas speak a corrupt form of Oriya.

The tribal religion consists of animism and Totemism. The tribal pantheon includes numerous deities and devils. They rely mostly upon magical charms and oblations for relief from sickness and epidemics, for success of hunting expeditions and good crops. The sowing and cutting of the various crops and the first eating of the various agricultural produce are also associated with a series of rituals and sacrifices.

The traditional tribal Councils play an important role in the social and religious life of the people. The village headman controls the social behaviour of its inhabitants. He takes initiative for the celebration of various religious festivals. He arranges marriages for the boys and girls of his village. He settles cases of elopement and divorce. The priest is the religious Head of the village.

All the tribes of the State are patriarchal. There are various types of acquiring mates. Marriage by capture, by service, by elopement and by mutual consent and negotiations are practised by the tribal people. They marry either the maternal uncle's daughter or the paternal aunt's daughter. A man may marry his deceased elder brother's wife (levirate). He may also marry his wife's younger sister (Sororate).

Monogamy is the most common form of marriage among these people. Polygamy, divorce and widow remarriages are also permitted.

A knowledge of socio-economic religious and political conditions of these people will help in formulating and implementing the various developmental programmes.

ANNEXURE—2.

Traits and Characteristics, Occupation and habitat, etc., of the Scheduled Tribes in Andhra Pradesh.

Sl. No.	Name of the Tribe	Population.	Habitat	Traits and Characteristics.	Occupation and Economy.
(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)
1.	Andh	1,468	Hill tracts of Western Adilabad District.	Andhs are dark in complexion, with thick lips, and prominent cheek bones. "It seems highly possible that the word Andh is only a corruption of the Sanskrit 'Andhra', a designation given by the ancient Aryans to an aboriginal Tribe dwelling in the Andhra Desh" (Wilson, V. P. 190).	Majority are engaged in agriculture. They also work as agricultural labourers.
2.	Bagata	55,154	They are mostly found in-Gangaraju Madugole (Hill Madugole), Golugonda agency in Narasipatnam taluk, Viravalli agency in Chodavaram taluk, Anantagiri agency, including Araku valley in Srungavarapukota taluk of Visakhapatnam District. They are found sparsely in the agency areas of South-West Srikakulam district bordering the Visakhapatnam agency.	They are divided into two subdivisions—(1) 'Andhs' and (2) 'Shadu Andhs'. Both these subdivisions inter-dine but not inter-marry.	They are agriculturists, and they also re-sort to Podu cultivation. They raise Chulam, Ragi French Beans, Turmeric, Chillies, and Niger.
				The Bagata tribe is divided into a number of exogamous septa, i.e., Korra, Pang, Majji, Bunchi, Gun-talu, Janumu, Gollari and Surya	They subsist on the collection and sale of minor forest produce like honey, soapnuts, tamarind, myrobalam, adda-leaves and broom-sticks.
				The Bagatas, Soldiers by profession served as soldeirs under the Golconda Kings with devotion. That is why they have been called Bhaktas and were awarded gift lands as Mokhasas.
				They speak a corrupt form of Oriya.

3. Chenchus

17,609

The Chenchus are inhabiting the dense forests, in Nallamalai ranges, South of river Krishna in Kurnool District and in northern side in Amarabad Plateau of Mahabubnagar and Nalgonda Districts. Some Chenchus are also found in plains in Guntur and Nellore Districts.

They are well built race, short in stature, with complexion varying from dark brown to black, and rather coarse and frizzly-hair; high and prominent cheek bones, broad noses with spreading nostrils, and black and piercing eyes. The jungle Chenchus are almost nude, wearing a piece of cloth round their loins, i.e., generally known as "Gochi or Kaupenam" as their main dress. A Chenchu lives in a bee-hive shaped hut with wattle walls, which can hardly accommodate his wife and children. They live in nuclear families; they observe clan exogamy, and monogamy is the common form of marriage; and polygamy is also prevalent and widow marriage is also permitted.

4. Gadaba

Predominantly populated in Gonga, Chodavaram and Srungavarapukota taluks of Visakhapatnam District and Salur and Parvatipur taluks of Srikakulam District.

Traditionally, they are plough cultivators in the plains. Practice Podu cultivation in the hilly tracts. Collect fire-wood from the forests and sell it in the weekly shandies. Also supplement their economy by hunting, food-gathering and fishing. Now they are engaged in stone cutting and earthwork; Serve as agricultural labourers and farm servants.

The males are short and well-built. The females are skillful weavers. In fact no Gadaba girl is considered to be qualified for marriage until she acquires the requisite skill in weaving. The village council holds its meetings on the stone-seats called 'Chandur Kandur' as they believe that these stone-seats are associated with the spirits of the dead. The discussions are conducted in a sacred atmosphere and the decisions are carried out respectfully. They live in compact villages and do not shift from village to village. They speak the Gadaba language which belongs to Mundari group of languages.

5.	Gond	.. 1,43,680	Largely in the Districts of Adilabad, Warangal, Khammam and Karimnagar.	They are a non-Aryan tribe and trace origin to the Dravidian stock. The Gond is characterised by a broad and rather flat face and high cheek-bones, a weak and not very fullmouth and a small pointed chin. The nose is small, short and widens rapidly from a narrow depressed ridge. They are divided into two endogamous groups—Raj Gonds and Dhurve Gonds. Speak the Gondi dialect, which has been given the Nagri script by the State Social Welfare Department.	The economy is based on plough Cultivation. Either own land, or take the land from patta-holders on rent or enter the service of a land-lord. A few Gonds have taken up crafts like blacksmithy, etc.
6.	Goud	.. 3,392	Largely in Visakhapatnam and sparsely in Srikakulam, East and West Godavari Districts.	They are a pastoral people. They worship Jagannadhaswamy and the various Takuranis-village deities. Marry maternal uncle's daughter. The dead are burnt. Memorial service is offered every year on Sankranthi day.	Agriculturists and cattle breeders. Work as labourers, Collect minor forest produce.
7.	Hill Reddis	.. 3,894	Largely live on either side of the Godavari river in Paloncha taluk of Khammam district.	They are small, sturdy stature, with shorter legs. They are broad-palmed and broad-soled with short fingers and toes. The	They are shifting cultivators in the hills, flanking the Godavari valley.

skin colour varies from a very light copper brown to dark chocolate, but medium brown with a ruddy and sometimes yellowish is also found. The hair is usually wavy but almost straight as well as curly hair is found among them. They are good at magic. They speak a corrupt form of Telugu.

They subsist on the collection of wild fruits and roots and hunting with bow and arrow. They use bamboo sticks or iron tipped digging-sticks for dibbling in the podu fields. Work as forest labourers for felling bamboo and floating timber.

8. Jatapu

Largely inhabiting the Parvatipur and Palakonda and Salur taluks of Srikakulam district.

Agriculturists. Practise Podu cultivation also. Work as forest and agricultural labourers. Also engage in the collection and selling of minor forest produce.

Have many exogamous totemic sects. A younger brother usually marries his deceased elder brother's wife. The youngmen select their brides from the 'Dangadi Basa' (Maidens' Hall). They worship Jakara Devata. Their priests and sooth-sayers, are known as Janni and Desari respectively.

They are beef-eaters.

9. Kammaras

24,629

Visakhapatnam, East Godavari, West Godavari and Srikakulam districts.

Kammaras manufacture all agricultural implements, and in return, they are paid either in cash or kind. Some of these tribal people are giving up their traditional profession and taking up agriculture.

Kammaras are blacksmiths settled in the agency areas. Their material cultural, religious and social organisation have close resemblance to that of the other tribes living in the agency areas.

They speak a corrupt form of Oriya language.

10. Kolam

16,731

The Kolams are inhabitants of Adilabad and Warangal districts.

Their economic system is very simple. Many of them are forest labourers. They are a tribe of primitive shifting cultivators who possessed until recently neither ploughs nor cattle; and even today many of them subsist by hoe-cultivation on hill slopes, and at present they have started plough cultivation.

Kolams are of shorter stature and stockier build, with features coarser than those of the average Gond, and a skin of dark brown colour. Their fore-head is rather low, the nose broad and fleshy, and the mouth very full, and sometimes with a slight tendency to prognathism the chin is generally small, pointed and weak. The Kolams

(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)
11.	Koya	.. 2,20,146	Koyas are inhabiting the forests as well as the plains villages of East Godavari, West Godavari, Adilabad, Warangal and Khammam districts. Koyas form the main aboriginal population of Karimnagar and Warangal.	There are several sections of Koyas such as Raja Koyas, Gutta Koya, Adlai Koya, Dallobe Koya and Bomme Koya etc. It is interesting to note that Koyas sometimes refer to their community as "Dorla Satam". Most of the Koyas speak Telugu as their language. But Koyas of Yellandu and Polancha Divisions of Khammam district speak Koya dialect. The marriage system prevalent among them is monogamy. Polygamy is also known to them. Marriages are generally by proposal, but marriage by force or elopement and by capture are also socially accepted.	speak Kolami, a dialect and Telugu. As they are living in the vicinity of Gonds, they have adopted the Gond's customs and many of them speak "Gondi" also.
				The religion of Koyas includes the cult of "Bhudevi" or "Bhumatha" who is responsible for their agriculture. For the fulfilment of their vows and supplications, they celebrate Jattras every year. They were said to have offered human sacrifice and no trace of it is found among them at present.	The main and traditional occupation of Koyas is Podu cultivation; and Koyas of Bhadrachalam region are quack doctors; they collect herbs and roots and use them as indigenous medicines and also sell them to the plains people. They are also forest labourers.
12.	Konda Dora	.. 86,911	Srikakulam, Visakhapatnam, East Godavari and West Godavari districts.	There are two divisions among Konda Doras, namely Pedda (big) and Chinna (little)	Konda Doras practise Podu cultivation on hill slopes. Their scanty agricultural produce is supplemented by minor forest produce.

Kondalu. The former have adopted totemic Divisions Naga (Cobra) Bhag (tiger) and Kochchino (tortoise) as exogamous sects, whereas the latter retained Telugu system of intiperu. The Chinna Kondalu have personal names corresponding to those of the inhabitants of the plains while the latter are taken from the days of the week. on which they were born e. g., Budha (Wednesday) Sukra (Friday).

There are two sub-divisions : Pedda Kondalu—living on the hills and Chinna Kondalu—living in the plains. The Pedda Kondalu marry the father's sister's daughter. The Chinna Kondalu marry the mother's brothers daughter. They speak Telugu.

Agriculturists and Agricultural labourers.

They are purely agriculturists. They practise Podu cultivation also.

Konda Reddis speak "Telugu" with a peculiar accent. They are classified into three sub-sects, namely: (1) Panda Reddis (2) Raja Reddis, (3) Suryavamsa Reddis. They are Saivites. They worship Pandavas, the spirits of the hills, Muthaiduvulu and the village deities, like Muthyalamma, Pothuraju, Saralamma and Unnamalamma.

During the first menses, a girl is put up in a separate small hut apart from the parental house and the house is burnt down after she is given bath.

Khonds, who are otherwise known as Samanthulu racially and linguistically a distinct tribe.

Khonds practise Podu cultivation. They cultivate Red Gram, Black Gram, Cholam,

13. Konda Kapu .. 29,823 Largely inhabit the hill slopes and the adjoining plains of the agency areas of Visakhapatnam District.

14. Konda Reddis .. 65,439 The Konda Reddis are chiefly found in Konda Madula, Kondada, Badula and Chavalamurtha area in East Godavari Agency.

15. Khonds .. 21,754 Hill tracts of Agency areas of Visakhapatnam and Srikakulam District.

16. Kotias

11,008 Agency areas of Visakhapatnam and Srikakulam Districts.

They speak 'kui' dialect which belongs to Dravidian language. Family. The women folk adorn themselves with picturesque ornaments. They wear mass of white bead necklaces. Marriage by mutual consent and elopement are universally recognised.

Women folk are conservative to the winds of change. They cover themselves with a scanty cloth their traditional fashion. 'Menarikam' or cross cousin marriage is obligatory among these people. Usually, the boys parents go to the girl's house and leave some presents (usually pots of drink). If the girls party accepts it, they renew their visit with further presents. The bride-groom has to pay bride price (Oli or Jola) to the girl's parents. Marriage by capture or elopement is socially recognised. Widow re-marriage and divorce are admissible.

Kotias are agriculturists and daily labourers. They collect minor forest produce like adda-leaf, Sheekai, and Tamarind etc., and sell them in the weekly shandies. Most of them gave up Podu cultivation and adopted settled agriculture.

17. Malis

1,443 Agency areas of Srikakulam and Visakhapatnam Districts.

Malis are mostly cultivators, but their traditional occupation is making garlands. They are skilful in growing vegetable gardens. They speak corrupt Oriya. They wear sacred thread. They claim that their ancestors lived originally at Benaras, whence they migrated to serve the Raja of Jypore. There are six divisions among Malis, namely: (1) Bodo,

Their traditional occupation is making garlands and providing flowers for service of temple. But most of them are agriculturists.

- (2) Pondra, (3) Kosalya, (4) Pannara, (5) Sonkuva and (6) Dongrudiya.

18. Manne Dora .. 8,476 The Mannedoras are found in Srikakulam, Visakhapatnam, East Godavari, West Godavari, Chittoor and Nellore Districts.

19. Mukha Dora .. 9,965 Agency areas of Visakhapatnam, Srikakulam and East Godavari Districts.

Mukha Doras are agriculturists and daily labourers. Most of them are working in the forest department for daily wages. They grow Cholan, Ragi, French Beans, Turneric, Chillies, and niger.

Their Physical type is progressive. Exogamous, Cross-cousin marriage is highly appreciated. They wear the sacred thread. They are animists. They cremate the dead. Their mother tongue is Telugu. They also speak other Tribal dialects because they live in the midst of different linguistic groups.

20 Porja .. 9,350 Agency areas of Visakhapatnam and Srikakulam Districts.

The term Porja as Mr. Charnichael has pointed out is a corruption of a Sanskrit term signifying a "subject". Porjas are divided into seven septs.

They are agriculturists and daily labourers. The women folk sell fire-wood. They cultivate Ragi, Cholan, French Beans and Turneric. They rear goats, pigs etc. for domestic consumption and for religious sacrifices.

(1) Barang Jhodia, who speak Oriya.

(2) Pengu Porjas, they speak a dialect which is said to be a close resemblance to Khonds.

(3) Khondi or Kondi Porjas, who are a section of the Khonds and speak Khond dialect.

(4) Parangi Porjas; they speak a Gadaba dialect.

(5) Bonde or Nanga Porjas, who are a section of Gadabas, call themselves Bonda Gadabas, and speak a dialect of Gadaba.

(6) Tagara Porjas, who are a section of Koyas speak Koya

(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)
21.	Pardhan	..	9,701 Largely in Adilabad District	dialect in some places and in some places Telugu language. (7) Dur Porjas: they speak corrupt Oriya. Their physical type is progressive, the face longer, the nose prominent and narrower the stature slighter and more delicate. The Gond system of endogamous phratries is also adopted by pardhans. They are hereditary bards of the Gonds, and also act as advisers, companions and genealogists to the Gonds. They are musicians, and sing mythological songs about Gonds while playing on the instrument called "Kengri". Play trumpets at weddings and funerals. The songs and stories which they preserve by oral transmission are the most important depositories of Gond tradition. As bards and Guardians of tradition, the Pardhans play a vital role in Gond culture. Their mother-tongue is Marathi, but they speak Telugu and Gondi also.	They receive presents in kind and cash by the Gonds for their services. They also live on daily labour and agriculture.
22.	Nayaks	..	2,902 The Nayaks are inhabiting the Districts of Srikakulam, Visakhapatnam, East and West Godavari, Khammam and Hyderabad Districts.	..	..
23.	Reddi Doras	..	3,132 Mostly in the Visakhapatnam Districts and sparsely in Krishna and Guntur Districts.	..	They are agriculturists. Also practise Podu cultivation. Collect Minor Forest Produce.

Agriculturists. Practise Podu cultivation also. They supplement their diet by hunting and food-gathering. Forest and agricultural labourers. Collect minor forest produce. Lately they started growing turmeric, bananas and ginger.

There are two types of Savaras—Savaras living on the hill tops; Kapu Savaras living in the low lands. The women are short. The women do not cover the upper parts of the body and tie a coarse cloth from below the navel to a few inches above the knee joint. Men tie up their hair in a knot behind. They are very superstitious and live in a world of spirits and dieties. The Savara medicine-man takes recourse to magical charms and oblations, in addition to the indigenous herbal medicines, to cure diseases. The Savara mantrams have been found efficacious. Some Savaras are very good at spotting good water springs. They are also experts in fixing auspicious days. They are fond of snakes. Mohua liquor (Ippa-Sara) is used in almost all their ritual functions.

The Banjaras carried their goods of commerce, sometimes even the soldiers' baggage, and even today in such parts of the dominions one meets picturesque troupes of Banjaras with bullocks loaded with grain. In other parts, wherever possible, they settled down in suitable pastures and bread the cattle that served as pack-bullocks for the tribe. In Kurnool and Anantapur districts, these people are existing as pastoral tribe, rearing the cattle of the plains people on reasonable remuneration. Some of them have resorted to agriculture and many of them are at present labourers.

The men are muscular of medium height, with generally a Rajput caste of countenance. They are strong and virile race with fair skin and often with light eyes. They are strong and energetic and capable of enduring long and fatiguing marches. (The women wear a lainga or skirt of coarse cotton prints, rich in embroidery work and hung from the waist in ample folds. A bodice or choli with long sleeves and tastefully embroidered in front and on the shoulders, covers the bosom and is tied at the back by bands, the ends of which are ornamented with cowries, beads and gaudy coloured tassels of cotton).

68,185 Largely in Mandasa, Palakonda, Tekkali, Sompeta, Srikurman and Parvatipur taluks of Srikakulam district.

24. Savara

96,174 Inhabiting the plains villages and forest villages; they are predominantly concentrating in Kurnool, Anantapur, Chittoor, Guntur and Krishna districts where they are termed as 'Sugalis' and also sparsely spread in Khammam, Warangal and Hyderabad Districts Known as Banjaras or Lambadis.

25. Sugalis

(1)	(2)	(3)	(4)	(5)	(6)
				The Sugalis speak their own language which is similar to Gujarati language. Etymologically the word 'Lambada' is derived from "Lavana" or salt and the word 'Banjara' from 'Binjar', which means businessmen. The general marriage system of the Sugalis is monogamy but polygamy is also common among them.
26. Thoti	..	546	Largely in Adilabad District..	The Thoties are primitive and their pigmentation is much darker. The male members are engaged in making small articles of bamboo. They also collect and sell the medicinal herbs to the plains people. The women are experts in tattooing. Professional bards and musicians to the Gonds. Their mother-tongue is Gondi.	Most of them live on daily labour and few are agriculturists.
27. Valmiki	..	22,354	Visakhapatnam, East Godavari and Srikakulam districts.	They speak corrupt Oriya. Marriage by mutual consent, by capture, and by elopement are socially accepted. Widow marriage and divorce are permissible. They worship Ganga-Devudu, Sanku-Devudu, Pedda-Devudu and they sacrifice goats and fowls on the festive occasions. Some of the Valmikis have been converted to Christianity.	Valmikis are agriculturists and daily labourers. Some of the Valmikis are merchants and money-lenders. A few are having cultivable lands. They do podu cultivation on the slopes of hills.
28. Yanadi	..	2,05,381	The Yanadis are predominantly concentrating in Nellore, Guntur, Chittoor and Krishna districts and some are in the Agency tracts; that is, it can be said that the principal habitat of the Yanadis is between the	Generally a Yanadi can be identified by his distinct features, tall in stature, bony in structure, some what dark in complexion, with frizzly-hair, snubbed nose-bridge, lanky legs and thick lips. The primitive Yanadi	They live on edible jungle produce; fishing and hunting of hare, fox, jungle cat and jungle rat etc. They know neither agriculture nor crafts. They are labourers and they serve in the private houses.

wears 'Gochi' or 'Kaupeenam', as his main dress just to cover his nudity.

They live in the dome-shaped huts with palmyrah leaves-roofing. They never live in joint families, but only in nuclear families.

They speak Telugu language. They are endogamous tribe with clan exogamy.

They are adapting different types of occupations, which they are named after, and at present "Dabba Yerukulas", "Yeethapullala (Bamboo) Yerukulas" are adapting to their traditional occupations of basketry and the making of weaving-brush, and a few Yerukulas are doing agriculture while some are labourers in the agricultural fields.

29. Yerukula .. 1.28,024 The Yerukulas are predominantly concentrating in Guntur, Krishna, Kurnool, Nellore, Cuddapah, East and West Godavari Districts and sparsely spread all over the other Districts.

The "Yerukulas" or "Korwas" are a vagrant tribe found throughout the erstwhile Madras Presidency and from the south to the North of North Arcot District, they are called "Korwas" and from the North Arcot District upto the ceded districts, they are called as "Korechas" or "Koracha", and in the ceded districts, they became "Yerukula" or "Yarakala". The Yerukulas who are the plains tribe, speak their own language called "Yerukula Bhasha" which is a conglomeration of Tamil, Canarese and Telugu, and it has no script. The Yerukulas are divided into 10 different subdivisions known as (1) Kunchapuri (2) Parigamuggula (3) Koot (4) Uppu (5) Karepaku (6) Voola (7) Yeddu (8) Dabba (9) Yeethapullala and (10) Bhujanthri. All these ten subdivisions are classified into 4 septs (clans) as (1) Sathapaty, (2) Manpaty, (3) Kavaty and (4) Mandragutti.

Observing clan exogamy, they inter-marry among all the
