inputs, for organising such training programme may be provided by the sectoral directorates/departments of the Administration on consortium basis from their funds under TSP/SCA.

2.5 Sectoral Directorates/Departments1. Directorate of Agriculture

- a. Although lot of raw material input support is being provided by the directorate among the tribals, there appears to be some sort of adhocism in the entire approach. It is felt that the directorate should chalk out a well planned detailed and area-wise action plan for the next five years so that the element of adhocism in the implementation process is reduced.
- b. In addition to providing raw material support, the tribals should be provided with continuous training for undertaking suitable agricultural activities in their area e.g. continuous motivation and training among the Great Andamanese, Onges and Nicobarese may be provided for developing kitchen garden and other suitable agricultural activities in the respective tribal areas.
- c. There is scope for further improvement in the existing programme of development and maintenance of plantations in the tribal areas through more and more involvement of the tribals.
