

There are several livelihood alternatives provided in incentives by the government to supplement village economy, few of them like beekeeping, leaf plate making, candle making, small ruminants rearing, and small dairy units are well adaptable to tribes which need awareness on the schemes launched by the government.

It's crucial time the government contemplate anent RoFR Act 2006 to arrest forest encroachments. The RoFR Act 2006 act needs to be amended or uprooted completely, for it shall pave for more encroachments and decline of forest cover across the country. If ignored it shall remain a serious crime committed in the history of mankind.

Sir, the society is hopeful that The Office of Prime Minister will do its best to put a hold to this dangerous trend of decline in forest land. The PMO can direct the Ministry of Environment and forests, Ministry of Tribal Affairs and all concerned departments to exercise caution in alienating forest land to individuals or communities.

Thanking you Sir.

Yours sincerely

M. Sai Sampath
SAI SAMPATH. M

Founder-President

ECO-FAWN