Jarawas in the manner aforesaid. It will be necessary to ascertain whether such change of behaviour is really the expression of desire of such Jarawas, who are coming out on the open to accept the way of life of the so-called civilized society and if yes, whether such desire is of the entire Jarawa community, as sought to be contended by the petitioner Miss Ganguly or has resulted from shortage of food for them in the Jarawa habitat or to obtain occasional medical help or mere stray incident caused because of the failure of the Administration to give them proper protection in their own habitat taking suitable measures against the poachers and the encroachers upon Jarawas' land causing further shrinkage of their territory and, therefore, is really the result out of compulsion. It is needless to mention, answer to such question along with many other issues will be indeed of relevant consideration for the Central Government and the Andaman & Nicobar Administration to formulate such a policy. In our view policy decision in a matter like this cannot be taken by the Government on its own but only after seeking opinion from different experts, national or international, being Anthropologist, Sociologist, Medical expert, nutrition expert and also individuals or organisation, Governmental or otherwise who are acquainted with the life, behaviour and language
