

Having witnessed firsthand many age-old cultures go extinct, our goal has become to capture (mainly visually) as much of indigenous cultural heritage as possible before it is gone. Moreover we have no financial motivation for a project like this and would also refrain from any publication if requested so. Being allowed to leave something behind for the tribal communities themselves and -if considered useful- for the local researchers would be more than enough for us.

As I have mentioned earlier we do also support tribal welfare projects all around the world and constantly look for compelling projects in this field. Getting a chance to learn about the native population of the A&N Islands and all the ongoing and planned projects on the ground -in order to potentially support these- would be also very much appreciated.

Lastly let me express my deepest admiration for the work of the AAJVS and my gratitude for considering this application.

Respectfully,
